Dear Alumni and Friends:

On March 1, 2012 I began my new role as president of Mitchell Community College. The College held the official inauguration celebrating this change on September 28.

My first seven months as the 23rd president of the College have been filled with visits with students, business and industry representatives and our public schools. I have had conversations with colleges and university partners as well as community organizations. In addition, I have been immersed in the daily operations of the College.

A consistent theme with these visits and conversations has been the high regard for the College from constituents, stakeholders, faculty, staff and the general public. There is great respect and admiration for the College’s past, high regard for what the College is currently doing to serve students, and great excitement about what the future holds.

This addition of The Circle celebrates the inauguration, but also reports on some of the College’s activities giving a sampling of the work we do in various venues to serve educational needs.

Dr. James T. “Tim” Brewer Installed as 23rd President

Dr. James T. “Tim” Brewer was inaugurated as the fourth president of Mitchell Community College and the 23rd president of the institution on Friday, September 28, 2012. The ceremony took place on the Circle on the College’s historic main campus. In attendance to celebrate the event were board of trustee members, executives from the system office, delegates from colleges and universities across the state, faculty and staff, community members, plus friends and family. Dr. Ralph Bentley, chair of the board of trustees, presided over the ceremony. Brewer’s father, Dr. Luther G. Brewer, pastor emeritus of Greenwood Forest Baptist Church in Cary gave the invocation.

Martin Lancaster, president emeritus of the North Carolina Community College System, presented Dr. Brewer at the ceremony. Lancaster recalled how he recruited Brewer, who was working for Wayne Community College, to join the system office as his executive assistant. Brewer went on to serve as executive director of the State Board of Community Colleges. He shared how he saw leadership potential in Brewer early on and praised the mentorship provided by Dr. Douglas Eason.

In his address, Brewer thanked his family, the board of trustees, and the faculty and staff for their support. He talked briefly about his four priorities—programming, partnerships, technology and innovation. Brewer also talked about the importance of serving our students and helping them reach their educational goals.

“I truly believe with hard work, students can realize that this truly is a place where the American dream can be achieved,” said Brewer. “For every student who attends this institution, whether a college transfer student, a technical or applied study student, or a student enrolled in continuing education courses, each of these individuals have within them the potential for great success.”

Guest speakers included Dr. Scott Ralls, president of the North Carolina Community College System; Dorothy Woodard, member of the Board of Trustees; George Brawley, vice chair of the MCCCEE; Joe Troutman, treasurer for the Alumni Association; Steve Johnson, chairman of the Iredell County Commissioners.

Speaking on behalf of faculty, staff and students were Jonathan Gaghan, president of the Student Government Association; Dr. Camille Reese, vice president for instruction; and Michael Brooks, director for early college programs. Dr. David Calhoun, pastor of Fair View United Methodist Church in Mt. Mourne gave the benediction.

The program included music by the Unifour Brass Ensemble, including an original arrangement composed for the event in honor of Dr. Brewer, and featured performances by Mitchell’s Community Choir and Student Chorus, directed by Dan Pardue and accompanied by Jane Pardue.

A reception honoring Dr. Brewer was held at the Statesville Civic Center following the event.

“We are so fortunate to have Dr. Brewer as our new president. Let’s join together as we celebrate this wonderful occasion.”

Creating Success

Brewer Shares Direction with Faculty, Staff and Business Leaders

Since assuming the role of president, Dr. James T. “Tim” Brewer has developed a strategic direction for Mitchell’s future, a roadmap that he has shared with faculty and staff, business leaders in Iredell County, and students. That roadmap includes four strategic areas:

Programming
- Providing curriculum and continuing education programs that are relevant and lead to employment or appropriate credentialing
- Developing new degree and continuing education offerings based on needs as defined by constituents

Partnerships
- Continuing to grow current partnerships with the public school system, higher education institutions, business and industry, as well as state and local governments
- Working together to generate greater economic development opportunities

Technology
- Managing trends that are constantly changing
- Enhancing student learning and ensuring students leave with technology in-hand for their chosen career

Innovation
- Going beyond “thinking outside the box”
- Getting creative about how the College can help students be successful and move the institution forward

Brewer admits that these priorities are not revolutionary but will be evolutionary as the College moves forward.

“Each of these four areas, with meaningful dialog, thoughtful planning and implementation will lead to true sustainability for Mitchell Community College,” said Brewer. “For our students, it means a greater opportunity for persistence, retention, matriculation, graduation and success.”

Brewer with family—parents Mary George Brewer and Dr. Luther G. Brewer, son Ethan, wife Shannon, daughter Kamryn, brother Gordon Brewer, and sister Rosemary Brewer Rhodes.

James Timothy “Tim” Brewer brings a diverse background of teaching and administrative experiences to Mitchell. Early in his career he began to see the importance an education can play in a person’s life. He believes in the “open door” that community colleges provide to those who seek to improve their lives.

Brewer received an undergraduate degree in recreational administration from Mars Hill College in 1989, a master’s of recreation resources from North Carolina State University in 1991, and an Ed.D in higher education administration from North Carolina State University in 2003.

After graduating from the master’s program, Brewer began his professional career as a park ranger with the State of North Carolina. He left the park system to pursue a teaching career at Wayne Community College in Goldsboro. That experience led him to pursue a career in community college administration.

In 2000, Brewer joined the North Carolina Community College System office serving as executive assistant to President H. Martin Lancaster and executive director of the State Board of Community Colleges. As a member of the leadership team, he worked with community colleges across the state, the UNC general administration, the Department of Public Instruction, the Governor’s office, and state legislators.

In 2005, Brewer came to Mitchell to serve as vice president for instruction and then as executive vice president and chief academic officer. In that role, he led the institution through the accreditation process with the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, Commission on Colleges.

Brewer grew up in Cary, NC. He and his wife Shannon Taylor Brewer, a clinical psychologist, reside in Mooresville with their son Ethan, who is nine and daughter Kamryn, who is seven.
Mitchell Receives $500K For Nursing Chair

Mitchell Community College received a generous gift of $500,000 from the Buford Rimmer estate to establish a nursing chair. The Sallie Beaver Rimmer and Buford Edison Rimmer Endowed Chair will provide an opportunity for selected nursing faculty to undertake professional development projects with the goal of encouraging innovation.

Mr. Rimmer was a native of Statesville and his wife of Troutman. He retired as a regional sales manager with Brown, Rogers, Dixon Distributors in Columbia, South Carolina. Following his retirement, the couple returned to Statesville. He served as a deacon and chair of the Capital Campaign at First Baptist Church.

The Rimmers had no children but shared close relationships with their nieces and nephews.

Mr. Rimmer died May 2, 2011, at the age of 98. His wife, Sallie, passed away in 2002. Both received care by nurses who graduated from Mitchell.

Mitchell Awarded $453K Grant from NC Back-to-Work Program

Program provides financial assistance for training to the long-term unemployed

Mitchell Community College has been awarded a $453,160 grant from the North Carolina Back-to-Work program. The program is a partnership between NC Community Colleges and the NC Department of Commerce and will focus on providing job training and retraining; employability skills, including a Career Readiness Certificate; and third-party, industry-recognized credentials to the long-term unemployed.

“This program will go a long way in helping Iredell County residents who have exhausted their unemployment benefits and lack the resources to go back to school,” said Carol Johnson, vice president for continuing education and workforce development. “Our goal is to help these individuals obtain marketable credentials, which we hope will lead to employment and new careers.”

Who Qualifies
North Carolina residents who have received unemployment benefits for more than 26 weeks, as certified by the Department of Commerce, will qualify for the Back-to-Work program. Individuals will receive financial assistance to train for a career in a field that has been determined to have jobs available in Iredell County. Assistance may cover student support and coaching, targeted financial assistance, including registration fees, books and certification costs. Other individuals may enroll and receive free career skills assistance and Career Readiness Certification, but will be required to pay registration and other fees.

How to Participate
1. Attend a Back-to-Work orientation session which includes:
   • Eligibility Requirements
   • Career Assessment
   • Efficient Use of the Internet
   • Time/Stress Management Skills
   • Productive Study Skills
   • Researching the Labor Market
   • Career Readiness Certification (CRC)
2. Based on interest and ability, complete either the
   • Technical Boot Camp or
   • Informatics Boot Camp
3. Register for your occupational class of choice.
5. Complete a Job Readiness Boot Camp that will assist with job search and employment.

Five Associates Recognized for Excellence

Five Mitchell Community College faculty and staff members were presented the R.D. Grier Excellence in Education Award for their contributions to Mitchell and its students. The award, named in honor of dedicated Mitchell supporter R.D. Grier, recognizes individuals nominated by faculty, staff and students.

Anna Gordon, nursing instructor, received the full-time faculty award. Gordon is a registered nurse whose specialty areas include neonatal, medical/surgical, and mental health. In addition to her instructional responsibilities, she co-chairs the Student Nurses Association and serves as project director for the Nursing Excellence Grant.

Amy Money, office administration instructor, received the adjunct faculty award. Money received a GED from Mitchell, then completed an associate degree in 2001, graduating with honors. She is known for both patience and enthusiasm in her work.

Mark Niswonger, IT coordinator, received the professional staff award. He is a Mitchell graduate and is known for the excellent support he provides, his ability to solve complex problems, and his interest in streamlining operations.

Nancy Fields, student records technician, received the support staff award. Fields graduated from Mitchell and has been at the College for 24 years. She is recognized for always going the extra mile to help others accomplish their goals.

Lamont Kinney, facilities technician, received the facilities support award. Kinney’s positive, friendly attitude is enjoyed by faculty, staff and students. He is known for being the “cheerful ambassador” on campus, taking time to talk with and encourage students.

Dr. Camille Reese Named Vice President for Instruction

Dr. Camille Reese has been named Mitchell’s vice president for instruction. In this role she will have primary responsibilities for academic programs, institutional effectiveness, accreditation, and library services. In addition, she will serve as a member of the President’s Council and as the liaison to the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS).

Reese served as Mitchell’s dean of nursing, health services and public service technologies. Prior to coming to Mitchell, she served as assistant professor/RN-BSN coordinator at Winston-Salem State University, associate director of nursing education at NW AHEC/Bowman Gray School of Medicine, and clinical instructor at Forsyth Technical Community College.

Professional accomplishments include being appointed director of the NC-NET Nursing Center for Excellence, a collaborative project for the North Carolina Community College System to develop a learning repository for nursing and allied health programs; being appointed director of the RIBN Initiative, a collaborative project between area community colleges and the NC Foundation for Nursing Excellence; authoring a 60-credit hour online continuing education program for the Nurse Educator Institute; and serving as site visit chair for the National League for Nursing accreditation committee.

She began her education at Forsyth Tech. Reese has a doctorate in educational leadership and a master of science in nursing from the University of North Carolina-Greensboro, and a bachelor of science in nursing from Winston-Salem State University. She received the Certified Nurse Educator (CNE) designation from the National League of Nursing.

Mitchell to Go Tobacco-Free

The Mitchell Community College Board of Trustees voted to make the College tobacco-free, effective May 13, 2013.

Tobacco use is the leading cause of preventable death in North Carolina. The Board recognizes that tobacco use on College premises is detrimental to everyone’s health and safety and to the environment. Mitchell will become the 34th community college in North Carolina to go tobacco-free.
2012 Distinguished Alumni Award Call for Nominations

Mitchell Community College is accepting nominations for the Distinguished Alumni Award. The award honors an alumnus who has achieved exceptional career goals, or earned a superior reputation within a particular field, or made significant contributions to the College, or to the local or national community. An alumnus is a person who obtained a degree, certificate or diploma from the College, or its predecessor Mitchell College.

To nominate, send a letter of recommendation to “Alumni Office,” Mitchell Community College, 500 West Broad St., Statesville, NC 28677-5264 or fax to (704) 978-5406. You can also email a nomination to alumni@mitchellcc.edu. Deadline is February 1, 2013.

For more information, visit www.mitchellcc.edu/alumni/distinguished-alumni.cfm

Bill Moose ’68 Receives Distinguished Alumni Award

Mitchell alumnus and retired instructor William “Bill” Moose was named this year’s Mitchell Distinguished Alumni award winner. The announcement was made during the annual alumni reunion luncheon. Moose was recognized again at the College’s opening faculty/staff assembly.

Moose grew up in Iredell County and completed his first two years of college at Mitchell before transferring to Wake Forest University, where he completed a B.A. and M.A. in history. While a student at Mitchell, Moose served as vice president of Phi Theta Kappa and as a member of the Mu Chapter of Sigma Pi Alpha. He was selected to the 1968 edition of Who’s Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges.

In 1981, Moose began teaching U.S. and N.C. history at Mitchell. He retired in 2011 with 30 years of service. During his tenure, students, faculty, and staff often sought him out for his expertise about local, state, and national history. For many years, Moose researched and wrote a weekly column, “Out of Our Past in Iredell,” in the Statesville Record and Landmark.

He and his wife, Ena, have two children, Katie and David.

Anesia Custer was awarded the 2012-2013 Alumni Scholarship. She is a 2010 graduate of North Iredell High School and is working towards an associate in arts degree. Custer plans to transfer to Appalachian State University to pursue a bachelor’s degree in art education.

“I want to thank the Alumni Association for this scholarship,” said Custer. “Without it, I wouldn’t be able to afford the tuition. This goes a long way in helping me achieve my goal of becoming an art teacher.” In her spare time, she enjoys art and painting and playing tennis. She plays the bass guitar for her church.

Custer’s mother, Renae graduated from Mitchell in 2005 with an associate in arts degree. She is currently a paraprofessional and teaching assistant in the Iredell-Statesville School system.

Gary Staggers began working in NASCAR racing at the age of 21, starting off as a mechanic and working his way up to an engineering assistant and car chief mechanic. But after several layoffs, he decided on a new track, a career in mechanical engineering. That decision brought him to Mitchell Community College.

Staggers graduated in May with an associate in applied science degree in mechanical engineering technology, finishing with a 3.9/4.0 GPA. At Mitchell, he became an integral member of the NASA USLI Rock-SAT team, serving as mechanical lead. That experience helped him secure a paid summer internship at NASA’s Kennedy Space Center. There Staggers worked in a NASA lab doing 3-dimensional design work for NASA customers.

The “track” got even better when Lift Technologies in Westminster, SC offered him a position as a product engineer. Staggers started work on a bachelor’s degree in engineering this fall at Clemson University, and Lift Technologies is providing full tuition reimbursement.

“They are totally committed to me finishing my bachelor’s degree,’ said Staggers. “They allow me to work full-time and compensate school hours for working hours.” The company even covered the Staggers’ moving expenses from North Carolina.

When he completes his bachelor’s degree, the company will move him to the role of senior design engineer.

2012-13 Annual Sponsors Recognized

The Mitchell Community College Endowment for Excellence (MCCEE) recognized its 2012-13 Annual Sponsors at a reception attended by the MCCEE Board. Proceeds from the annual sponsorship program help underwrite fundraising events and other initiatives during the 2012-2013 academic year.

Since its inception in 1996, the MCCEE has allocated more than $2.75 million to various programs and services that have strengthened the College and helped create success for students.

Financial commitments from annual sponsors position the MCCEE to continue to invest in scholarships, professional development, academic programs, new technology, and arts and community service programs.

“We are grateful for our 2012-2013 Annual Sponsors. This program allows us to recognize and bring public attention to the financial commitment our corporate and individual partners make to the advancement of Mitchell Community College through the MCCEE,” said Harry Stillerman, director of development and college relations. “We are pleased that our partners recognize the value of a Mitchell education and that they have chosen to join in our efforts to grow the Endowment to a level that will allow the College to continue improving the quality of life for everyone in our community.”
